

Adam Y. Wong
Senior International Advisor
Office of Fossil Energy and Carbon Management
U.S. Department of Energy

Mr. Adam Y. Wong is the Senior International Advisor in the Office of Fossil Energy and Carbon Management (FECM) at the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE). In this role, Mr. Wong leads overall FECM international coordination efforts with global partners committed to areas including carbon management, methane mitigation, energy security, and the decarbonization of the fossil fuel value chain as a long-term climate strategy.

Prior to this, Mr. Wong was the Director for Strategic Engagement in FECM's Office of Carbon Management, where he led both domestic and international carbon management engagement portfolios with a diverse set of stakeholders, including multilateral and bilateral efforts.

Mr. Wong was previously assigned to Beijing, China as an Energy Attaché and Acting Director for DOE's China Office at the U.S. Embassy in Beijing. In this role, Mr. Wong represented the Secretary of Energy and DOE at the U.S. Diplomatic Mission to China to advance U.S. security and economic interests through the U.S. Government's and DOE's energy and nonproliferation goals, objectives, agreements, and policies, as well as other initiatives.

Prior to joining DOE, Mr. Wong was a consultant with both IBM and Leonardo Technologies, Inc. (LTI), a small consulting firm.

A native of Virginia, Mr. Wong received a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and Chinese from the College of William & Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia, and has college credits from Tsinghua University and Peking University, both in Beijing, China.
