

Kara Peach is a seasoned government professional with 18 years of experience in Federal and State government roles across Australia. Holding an Honours Degree in Law from the University of Birmingham and supported by a robust legal background in private practice, Kara has dedicated her career to shaping and enhancing public policy, particularly in the area of carbon capture and storage (CCS). As a key advisor to various government departments, Kara has been instrumental in navigating the complexities of CCS policy and reviewing and managing Australia's offshore regulatory frameworks, including leading the acreage release process. Kara is currently the Director Transboundary CCS at the Department of Climate Change, Energy, the Environment and Water responsible for delivering the Regional Cooperative Initiative on Offshore Carbon Sequestration which aims to establish regulatory frameworks and bilateral instruments to better support heavy industry to reduce emissions to meet Paris Agreement commitments, both in Australia and overseas.
